Ovzon gets first order through Airbus

Ovzon has received an initial order for satellite services through Airbus for a customer in the UK. The service is for 12 months and delivery starts in February 2021.

Ovzon and Airbus entered into an agreement in April 2020 to together market Ovzon's end-to-end services including Ovzon's mobile terminals and efficient, reliable support. This order for Ovzon services is the first order under that agreement.

Airbus Defence & Space is a leading integrator and provider of advanced secure satellite communication services and network management infrastructure. Airbus delivers flexibility, resiliency and security for governments, militaries and international agencies with an end-to-end service offer bringing the most comprehensive bandwidth and terminal portfolio coupled with leading capabilities in network services and solutions.

"We are excited to receive this first order from Airbus and proud to get their trust to deliver our high-end service. We look forward to continue build and expand our business with Airbus and their demanding customers", says Magnus René, CEO of Ovzon.
